“If not now, when? If not you, who?”
The Courage to Change the Future of Baltimore City and Beyond

While family members wait to hear from doctors, there is an unsettled feeling of sadness, anger and fear. Too many mothers go home without their sons and daughters. Too many children wake in the morning to find that their mother or father will not be coming home. The steel grip of violence has become a constant threat in the streets and homes of Baltimore. Sirens replace the stillness of the night and sleep is stolen by the awareness that the hours of darkness give violence license to run rampant.

These are the cases we see. But we know there are stories, hidden behind closed doors, that are unseen and unimaginable - children suffering physical, sexual and emotional abuse; spouses silently living with domestic violence; vulnerable, elderly residents suffering neglect, malnourishment and cruelty.

The numbers are staggering. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, nearly two-thirds of adults have experienced at least one type of adverse childhood experience, and nearly 1 in 6 reported they had experienced four or more. One in four of us has witnessed violence, so much so, that it becomes a nearly indelible imprint in our minds, shaping behaviors, thoughts and reactions.

Dr. Robert Block, former president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, stated that violence is the “single greatest unaddressed public health threat facing our nation today.”

Children who experience abuse or witness abuse in their homes suffer impaired emotional and social functions because they begin to believe that the very same people who love them and care for them are also violent toward them. They begin to equate love and violence as one in the same. Self-coping mechanisms often include alcoholism, substance abuse, disconnection with feelings, withdrawal from safe people and a continued cycle of violence.

FY21 HONOR ROLL OF DONORS ENCLOSED | WINTER 2022

“If not now, when? If not you, who?”

The Courage to Change the Future of Baltimore City and Beyond

The perpetuation of mental and physical health disorders due to violence costs approximately $1.5 billion annually for child welfare agencies, mental health treatment, law enforcement and other resources.

Imagining Hope

Imagine the cost savings if the cycle of violence is broken for good. Imagine the health of a person and of an entire community if violence was not the norm in many homes and in our streets. The Center for Hope has imagined it and is taking the steps towards making a safer, healthier community a reality.

In November 2020, LifeBridge Health broke ground on the Pimlico campus, Sinai Hospital’s expanded campus in Park Heights, to create a dedicated facility that will be a beacon of hope and resiliency in a dire community. While Baltimore has a culture of violence plaguing our streets, we also have a clear and present light shining through the people and programs combating violence, providing interventions and bringing healing.

The new Center for Hope will be a comprehensive “one stop shop” to help thousands of victims of abuse and violence recover from trauma each year. It will be the future home of Baltimore’s coordinated response to child abuse, human trafficking, domestic violence, community violence, and elder abuse.

The Center for Hope’s two-story, 32,000 square foot building will house the first comprehensive violence intervention and prevention center in the nation to become part of a large regional health system. It will bring LifeBridge Health’s community violence programming into one location, including the Baltimore Child Abuse Center; the Sinai Violence Response Team; the Domestic Violence Program at Northwest Hospital; the Kujichagulia Center; a new Safe Streets site; and an elder justice program.

Seeing Double Gives Orthopedic Physicians a Clear View

Matching Gift Challenge from the Hackerman Foundation Provides New Technology at the RIAO

On the evening of September 10, 2001, leaders, physicians, honored guests and media outlets gathered for the opening of the Rubin Institute for Advanced Orthopedics (RIAO) at Sinai Hospital. Following the speeches, dedication and celebration, Dr. Jerry Reichmister, chief of orthopedics and his wife, Susan, went home with pride and a sense of accomplishment at what would become the future of orthopedic care in Baltimore.

As we look back now, twenty years later, the accomplishments of the Rubin Institute for Advanced Orthopedics stand tall and mature, exceeding every expectation. What began as a concept between four founding physicians has grown into a fully integrated team of more than 250 medical professionals performing approximately 4,500 orthopedic procedures annually. Pediatric and adult patients travel to the Rubin Institute for Advanced Orthopedics from every state in the nation and from more than 50 countries around the world.

“God gives us life, and with that life comes a responsibility to do His work as best we can. Giving our small treasure to help others is one way to do His work, and we are so grateful to be able to contribute to the EOSedge which makes a tremendous difference in the life of not only our own grandchild, but in the lives of so many other children as well.”

-Gilmore and Terry Brennan, grandparents of Charlotte Hall and grateful donors

“The deep commitment to deliver exceptional care drives our physicians to learn, improve and innovate at every turn,” explains Dr. Reichmister. “If we cannot find a solution to a complex situation, we develop our own and then teach the world what we know.”

This is exactly what John Herzenberg, M.D., director of the International Center for Limb Lengthening, and Shawn Standard, M.D., head of pediatric orthopedics, did at Sinai Hospital. Both physicians are credited with reintroducing the Ponseti method of conservative clubfoot treatment, as well as co-developing the PRECICE® limb lengthening system as an alternative to external fixators for limb lengthening. The PRECICE® method is now used in orthopedic practices around the world.

Today, if you ask Dr. Herzenberg his wish for the future, those who know him would not be surprised with his answer. His wish is something that impacts every patient he treats and will enhance the patient experience dramatically. With the help of our community and a major commitment from the Hackerman Foundation, Dr. Herzenberg’s wish is about to come true.

This year the RIAO takes another giant leap forward with the acquisition of the second-generation EOSedge imaging platform, and the opportunity to provide a groundbreaking technology to its youngest patients. EOSedge is a low dose imaging system that delivers full body, high-quality images covering the full set of musculoskeletal and orthopedic exams.

“The EOSedge delivers 50 to 85 percent less radiation than traditional methods, while still providing high quality imaging. This is something that we’ve wanted to do for our patients for a long time. We are so grateful to Ms. Hackerman and the Hackerman Foundation for getting us started toward securing this technology.”

The Hackerman Foundation generously pledged to match all donations made in support of the EOSedge, up to $225,000. The goal was to raise a combined $450,000 toward the $750,000 technology investment. Our challenge pledge was met in mid-August through contributions from the community, and we continue to receive gifts for this and other important technology.

“As an Emeritus Sinai Board member, Nancy Hackerman knows that the level of care that the RIAO provides is really unique—not just in our community but across the world,” says Julie Cox, vice president and chief development officer at LifeBridge Health. “RIAO’s second-generation EOSedge is the most advanced EOS imaging platform in the region.”

“The Hackerman Foundation’s community matching drive is the perfect example of the power of philanthropy,” says Neil Meltzer, president and CEO of LifeBridge Health. “Because of our community’s united generosity, we are able to improve the patient experience through innovation, implementation of best practices, and use of the very best technology.”

For children like four-year old Abby, an extended stay in the hospital means putting childhood on hold. Laughter, playing outside and time with friends take a backseat to blood tests, medical treatments and extended stays in the hospital. Abby was treated for a rare form of brain cancer. Her aggressive treatments at The Herman & Walter Samuelson Children’s Hospital at Sinai included several surgeries, chemotherapy, a feeding tube and port for administering medication. A certified Child Life Specialist accompanied Abby and her mom through each step of treatment thanks to the support of the Margaret D. and Benjamin S. Schapiro Child Life Therapy Program. The role of a Child Life Specialist is to allow each child in the hospital to feel like a kid again, as much as possible.

“An investment in child life therapy is probably one of the most important investments you can make for a child’s health,” explains Dr. Aziza Shad, the Ellen W.P. Wasserman Chair of Pediatrics at The Herman & Walter Samuelson Children’s Hospital at Sinai. “In addition to the exceptional medical care we provide, it is important to also make every psychosocial support mechanism available to our patients.”

Research shows that more than 50 percent of children experience some sort of trauma or anxiety due to their medical treatment or diagnosis. Without someone trained to help navigate that anxiety and without strategies to ease fears, children risk long-term emotional impact even after they recover from their medical diagnosis.

Understanding the need for child life specialists at The Herman & Walter Samuelson Children’s Hospital, Ben and Peggy Schapiro provided funding to support the Child Life Therapy Program. Since they began their involvement, the number of patients cared for at the Samuelson Children’s Hospital has grown tremendously, creating an even greater need to provide this important therapy to every child.

Last year, Ben and Peggy made a leadership commitment to permanently endow the Child Life Therapy Program by donating the seed funding to help establish a $3 million endowment. “We want to make sure that every child, like Abby, not only has the exceptional medical care they need, but also the support to dream, to play and to overcome fear, pain and anxiety. We get to see the smiles and hear the stories. It is very gratifying to know we can make a difference.”

Join Ben and Peggy to ensure child life therapy will always be available for our littlest patients and their families. Your gift today ensures all children in our care, like Abby, have the chance to play, laugh and experience childhood.

PHILANTHROPY AT LIFEBRIDGE HEALTH
A Year in Review

A total of $30,234,096 was received in new gifts and pledges for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2021, including PPE, meals and comfort items for staff designated to the Care Bravely Compassion Fund.
